

Desert Evening Hike – two tankas

We go steeply up winding a line through boulders, tiny twigs in cracks peek out a dry existence as snakes retreat with the sun.

From our rocky perch purple crags meet mango skies new with stars. In time, cool darkness lends its refuge.
An owl calls as we descend.